Information available from the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health indicates about 6,000 young people less than 20 years old were injured by animals during 1998. Thirty-one percent of these injuries (more than 1,800) involved cattle. The injuries are frequently due to an animal stepping on, falling onto, squeezing against, or kicking the handler. For additional information about cattle safety, go to the Clover Safe note at: <http://ucanr.org/cloversafe>.

Clover Safe Notes are prepared by the UC ANR Office of Environmental Health & Safety, in support of the Statewide 4-H Youth Development Program.
